2. IELTS Speaking Part 1: Introduction & Interview

1. What's your mother tongue?

→ The language that I speak the most fluently is certainly Vietnamese, my mother tongue.

→ My mother tongue/ first language is Vietnamese. Besides, I can speak English at a conversational level.

2. What other languages do you speak?

→ Well, I speak Vietnamese, which is my mother tongue, and English as well. I've always wanted to learn French, but I don't have enough time yet.

→ I speak Vietnamese, which is my mother tongue, and English as a foreign language. I've learned English for almost 10 years, and I wish I were more fluent in it.

3. Do you think learning languages is important?

→ Absolutely. Learning languages, especially English, allows us to be able to communicate with others. It also helps us study more effectively, since we can search for almost everything on the Internet in English.

→ Absolutely. Learning languages, especially English, allows us to be able to communicate with others. It also helps us study more effectively since we can search for almost everything on the Internet in English.

4. Do you think that English is difficult to learn?

→ In my opinion, every single language is difficult to learn, and English is not an exception. I mean, it might be easy to learn grammar and vocabulary, but it takes quite a long time to practice using the language fluently.

→ I think it is not only English. It is really hard to really master a language and learn all the cultural and social meanings in the conversation or messages. And every language has their own language pattern. I think most language learners can grasp the key structure and vocabulary but it takes time and a lot of effort to really master it.

5. Why did you learn English?

→ Back when I was in secondary school, English was a compulsory subject in my curriculum. Growing up I realized that having a good command would really boost my chances of getting a good job. That's why I've spent a lot of time getting better at this language.

→ Well, it's not really my own decision to learn the English language in the first place. In Vietnam, it's mandatory to learn that language in school since English education is part of every school's curriculum. So, we're left with no choice but to study English. When I'm in university, I realized the value of learning English at young age.

6. How do you learn English?

→ I try to speak English as often and as much as possible. Practice speaking is the best way to learn English for me. There is nothing better than the conversation to help me improve. The best of all is to practice in an English speaking environment.

→ I watch TV shows, or movies in English. The news can be difficult to learn from for my level, but the more I listen the more I'll pick up. When listening to something more than once; first, I try to catch the general meaning, then, listen a second time for more in-depth information.

→ I have a dictionary with me to look up new words and then write them down in a notebook. I try to use these new words in conversation, it's a great way to learn. I also find something that will be challenging, fun, like reading English newspapers, and I can learn English well from.

→ I write something in English in it every day, even if it's very simple. I start with small sentences and make them longer. Furthermore, I try to make friends online, visit English forums, or post English comments on Facebook. These are all useful tools for you to learn English well from.

7. Do you think a foreigner should learn your country's language when they arrive there?

→ Yes, definitely. Since language is an integral part of any culture, you can develop a cultural sensitivity while studying their very means of communication.

→ I think it's obviously in their best interest to pick up a few basic words or phrases in a local language. Firstly, it is an interesting experience to try to communicate with the locals in their mother tongue. You may not get the words right, but that's where the fun lies. Hence, people will find you more approachable and charismatic because of your efforts and sense of humour.

8. Do you often use a dictionary?

→ Yes, I do use a dictionary often as a part of my English language learning process and to find out the meaning of some uncommon words in my native language.

→ Yes, I use a dictionary very often, in fact daily. I am a student and I read a lot of English text related to my studies. I often come across words I don't know the meaning of and I use the dictionary to look up the meaning and synonyms.

9. What do you use dictionaries for?

→ I use a dictionary to get rid of bad translations, get help with spelling, pronunciation, grammar, word families, prepositions, phrasal verbs, idioms, synonyms, antonyms, much more. I also use a dictionary to build my grammatical structure.

→ I mostly use a dictionary for finding out the meaning and spelling of the English words which I am not familiar with when I am reading a book or some English news and articles. Apart from that, I also look at a dictionary when I need to find the synonyms or antonyms of a word and find examples of the use of a word in natural language.

10. What kinds of dictionaries do you think are most useful?

→ I believe an excellent dictionary should give us everything related to a word such as meanings, pronunciation, examples, word families and such like. Most times I use electronic dictionaries such Oxford, Longman, and others.

→ I think that it all depends on the needs and personal preferences of individuals. As for me, I find only those dictionaries useful which "explain" the meaning of the words with enough examples and elaborate interpretation. Besides, I also find those dictionaries very useful which use the "images" next to the meaning of the words, provide grammatical information, synonyms and antonyms of the words I look for.

3. IELTS Speaking Part 2: Individual long-turn talk

Topic: Describe a language other than English that you would like to learn.

You should say:

- what the language is
- where it is spoken
- what you think would be difficult and what would be easy about learning the language and explain why you would like to learn it.

Model answer 1:

- What the language is I would like to talk about a language that I really want to learn. It is Chinese.
- Where it is spoken Chinese is the primary and popular language in many parts of the world such as China, Hong Kong, Malaysia and Singapore. In terms of the number of speakers, Chinese is the biggest in the world.
- What would be difficult The special thing about Chinese is that it does not follow the traditional English or Vietnamese alphabet with letters such as A, B, C and D. Chinese is based on pictographic writing which is adopted by a number of other languages such as Japanese and Korean. Therefore, as a Vietnamese whose language is based on the Latin writing features, I find it grammatically difficult to write Chinese words and understand texts in Chinese.
- What would be easy I think there are a number of ways that help me improve my Chinese. I have a large number of Chinese friends in the UK who are excellent in Chinese language, which means that I can have experienced teachers for free. In addition to this, the growth of the Internet with online lessons and teaching materials allows me to learn Chinese at an affordable cost and whenever I want to.
- Explain why you would like to learn it There are a few reasons why I think learning Chinese is beneficial for me. First of all, Chinese is a popular language in the world and therefore being able to speak Chinese will enhance my employment prospects in the future. Secondly, I know a lot of Chinese people and talk with them on a regular basis. Understanding and being able to communicate in Chinese will further improve our relationships.

Model answer 2:

- What the language is I will now tell you about my favourite language besides English - it's Korean for sure.
- Where it is spoken This language Vietnam has a very close relationship with Korea, so I believe it will really help my future.
- What would be difficult I doubt it would be really challenging for me to learn Korean because it is not a Latin language, which is totally different from my mother tongue. Korean uses its own characters in its writing, so I would have to get familiar with its own alphabetical system. There are a lot of hard tones and stresses, too so it would be time-consuming to master Korean.

What would be easy I think I will get a grasp of it gradually by following various lessons on Youtube. As well as this, I will enroll on a Korean course at a reliable centre. I will also get a good textbook that summarizes all essential vocabulary and grammar. I think Korean vocabulary would be much easier for me to acquire than their grammar because I have heard that learning grammar is extremely frustrating.

Explain why you would like to learn it The reason why I really want to be fluent in Korean one day is because I am so in love with its adorable sounds. I myself actually can pick up some common phrases through a lot of Korean dramas and K-pop songs.

You know, knowing Korean in combination with my English skills can give me a competitive advantage in the not too distance future and it undoubtedly would make my future holiday in Korea more enjoyable. On top of that, I would be such a great feeling to be able to watch Korean movies without Vietnamese subtitles.

Model answer 3:

What the language is In today's world, knowing only one language is not enough. In order to improve the social accessibility, I would like to learn French.

Where it is spoken Moving on to the next point which is where this language is spoken. Actually, French is spoken not only in France but also in many other countries such as Canada or Belgium. In fact, French is one of the most widely spoken languages in the world.

What would be difficult Generally, most of the people think that French is a difficult European Language. Taking out time from my hectic schedule to learn this language will be a challenging task for me. Learning a language is no doubt a difficult and frustrating task. It took me years to master my English, and I know it will take no less to have a relatively good command of French.

What would be easy However, French is not hard to learn, especially when compared to English. First, English and French share a common alphabet and a large portion of vocabulary. Second, unlike English which is not consistent when it comes to pronunciation, French is simpler to pronounce than English. Finally, gendered words in French

Explain why you would like to learn it The number of French-speaking people is on the rise, and I have a plan to study in France in the future. So I think it would be better for me to know the language. I would like to learn the French language properly.

And as French is a world language, spoken by over 220 million people, learning French can give me access to a huge chunk of the world.

Language

1. Is it considered important in your country to learn foreign languages?

Answer:	• học ngoại ngữ rất quan trọng	• learning foreign languages is important
Explain:	• hầu hết doanh nghiệp đều có các chi nhánh quốc tế • mua bán hàng hóa ở nhiều quốc gia • tuyển người sử dụng được nhiều thứ tiếng • tìm được công việc bạn muốn	• most business has international branches • buy and sell goods in many countries • hire multilingual employees • to get the job you want
Conclude:	• học ngoại ngữ đóng vai trò quan trọng	• learning foreign languages play a crucial role

→ I definitely think that learning foreign languages is important not only in Vietnam but also in the whole world. This is because most business today has international branches and companies buy and sell goods in many countries. As a result, most companies prefer to hire multilingual employees who can communicate in different languages. So, to get the job that you want, learning foreign languages plays a crucial role.

Suggested ideas:

- benefit Vietnamese people in numerous ways
- the ability to communicate smoothly and effectively → a brighter career path
- the windows into an entirely different culture → become more broad-minded

→ Absolutely. I believe learning other languages can benefit Vietnamese people in numerous ways. The most significant merit might possibly be the ability to communicate smoothly and effectively with people coming from different countries, which could pave the way for a brighter career path. Additionally, a language is often seen as the windows into an entirely different culture so those who master foreign languages tend to become more tolerant and broad-minded, which in turn contributes significantly to their professional and personal life as well.

2. In your opinion, what is the best way to learn a language?

Ways to learn:

- classroom learning → learn from an expert + get some practice with peers
- practicing with a native speaker → improve both listening and oral skills

→ I think there are many good and effective ways to learn a new language. I consider classroom learning the best because we can learn from an expert and also get some practice with our peers, which helps with learning a language faster.

→ I think the most effective way to learn a language is to practice more with a native speaker. By doing this, you can improve both listening and oral skills simultaneously, you will be fluent in this language. Besides, I also do general readings in my spare time and keep a journal in English.

English as a global language

1. How do people in your country feel about English being the world language?

Suggested ideas:

- learn it as their native language
- learn it as a second language in a society that is mainly bilingual
- use it for practical purposes: administrative, professional or educational

→ Today, English is one of the major languages in the world. People who speak English fall into one of three groups: those who have learned it as their native language; those who have learned it as a second language in a society that is mainly bilingual; and those who are forced to use it for practical purposes: administrative, professional or educational. In Vietnam, English are considered as a foreign language. As a result, I suppose that Vietnamese people learn and use English for practical purposes as being mentioned above.

2. Does everyone in your country speak English?

Suggested ideas:

- communicating in English is becoming increasingly easy in major cities
- in smaller cities or rural areas → difficult for local residents to speak English
- older Vietnamese cannot speak English → younger generation can

→ Although Vietnamese is the national and official language of Vietnam and is spoken by a large majority of the population, communicating in English is becoming increasingly easy in major cities in Vietnam. However, in smaller cities or rural areas, it may be difficult for local residents to speak English. It is also assumed that most older Vietnamese cannot speak English. In contrast, younger generation can speak better English.
